

The process that determines police outputs includes

- (A) selection and training of officers
- (B) organization design
- (C) managerial practices
- (D) leadership
- (E) community expectations
- (F) all of the above
- (G) A and B and C only
- (H) C and D and E only

The policing strategy that invokes the formal sanctions of government is called the _____ strategy.

- (A) community building
- (B) education
- (C) presence
- (D) limitations
- (E) law enforcement
- (F) technical
- (G) scientific
- (H) none of the above

Social Influences is part of which major approach to the development of management theory?

- (A) the classical approach
- (B) the human relations approach
- (C) the behavioral science approach
- (D) the contemporary approach

The Compstat process is remarkably similar to the

- (A) Reform era of policing
- (B) Professional model of policing
- (C) SARA problem-solving model of policing
- (D) Political model of policing
- (E) none of the above

The three characteristics fundamental to all organizations and which are important in understanding police organization behavior are

- (A) control, orientation and message
- (B) composition, objectives and methods
- (C) composition, orientation and methods
- (D) characteristics, mission and measurement
- (E) none of the above

When employees perform a greater number of tasks at approximately the same level of difficulty this is called

- (A) job enlargement
- (B) horizontal job loading
- (C) job enrichment
- (D) job redesign
- (E) job design
- (F) vertical job loading